Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Friday 03 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mainly dry and cold today. Showery rain spreading east later.

Today:
A few icy patches at first. Then mainly dry and cold with some sunshine. A few showers in the north, showers becoming more widespread and heavier across the west later.

Tonight:
Cloud and outbreaks of rain, heavy in places, spreading east across much of Scotland overnight. Some snow on hills. Becoming drier in the north later with icy patches.

Saturday:
Rather cloudy at first with showers or longer spells of rain, mainly in the south. Becoming somewhat drier and brighter in the afternoon. Cold.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Mainly dry, cold and bright on Sunday. Rather cold and unsettled early next week with rain and snow at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.